FIRST CLASS CITIZENS WILL MAN COLUMBIA SHEET MILL; PAYROLL OF $100,000 MONTH

Three shifts, aggregating 600 men, will man the Columbia Steel Corporation's new sheet mill in Torrance. Selected from northern plants in South San Francisco and Pittsburg and from eastern steel centers, these men represent the highest type of steel workers. Torrance may well be proud to number such crews among the employes of its industrial plants. Ninety percent of them are skilled workers. About 60 percent of them are men with families. At least 300 of the employes have yet to arrive in Torrance. Those who now are here all set to start actual operations this week are mostly from South San Francisco. They come to Torrance highly recommended. Torrance banks received letters about all of the men who came here from South San Francisco. Northern bankers lauded the characteristics of the men, and anyone who takes a trip through the new mill here and looks at the faces of these new residents of the Southland will understand why. The monthly payroll of the new mill will approximate $100,000, it is estimated. This will be reached as soon as all the rolling units in the plant get under way. Columbia specializes in high-class trained workmen. The welcome which Torrance will give to Columbia in the program of Wednesday morning is as much to these new steel workers who have come here as it is to Columbia officials and executives. Torrance is an industrial city and is happy that in bringing a sheet mill here Columbia has added to its force of first-class citizens scores that are equally first-class.
